Today we had a fantastic maths lesson in the kitchen! First, the teacher told us we needed a dozen eggs. A dozen (1) equals twelve. Then, she divided us into 3 groups and each group made 10 biscuits. How many biscuits did we make all together? Thirty, because three (2) + ten equals thirty. We ate nine biscuits, so how many did we have left? Twenty-one, because thirty (3) - nine equals twenty-one. Our teacher also made eleven biscuits, so we (4) + her biscuits to ours and got thirty-two, because eleven (5) + twenty-one equals thirty-two. There are eight kids in the class. How many biscuits did each kid finally get? Four, because thirty-two (6) ÷ by eight equals four.
